

NEWPORT'S SANITARY CONDITION.

Some Comments on Dr. Peters's Description, and a Reply from the Same Source.

In commenting on Dr. J. C. Peters's description of the sanitary condition of Newport, the News of that city refers to an article which, the editor says, Dr. Peters attempted to force that paper to publish, saying that it purported to be a report of his speech before the Sanitary Association, and says that some of his statements were not true; that the assertions that he has made recently are much stronger than those of the original paper, and that they are not supported by a dozen people in the city.

When Dr. Peters is asked if he would like to comment, he says: "When I made my first statement before the Sanitary Protective Association in August last I was not aware that any reporter was present, nor was there; and I heard only accidentally, too late to prevent it, that any record of my remarks would appear in the Newport Daily Paper. The report in the News was compiled with the remark: 'The opinion of Dr. Peters is of such importance'."

"That we have obtained from him a more detailed expression of his views concerning the condition and needs of Newport, and shall endeavor to present them to our readers tomorrow." Under this and other outside pressure did I prepare an article for the Newport News, which I still believe to be true in every particular. The editor became frightened at the earnestness of a few of the old Newports, and finally concluded not to publish the article, in which decision I finally concurred, after the statement to him that it would probably be published elsewhere. It was rumored in Newport that I had voluntarily withdrawn the article, but I only did that after publication of it was privately refused. All our friends who offered to have the reported article published in pamphlet at his own expense and distributed to all the public houses in the city, and the same time that he would rather give $100 for the pamphlets proposed than insert it in the Newport News as an advertisement for $25.
